

The Dallas Morning News

10.24.2012

Sculpture fundraiser

The Nasher Sculpture Center will hold its first family fundraising event on April 28 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Co-chairs Lucy and Steve Wrubel and Megan and Brady Wood say that the Great Create will engage families' artistic sides while raising money for the Nasher's educational initiatives.

The Great Create: By Artists. For Kids will feature an afternoon of art activities and workshops in the Nasher Garden led by local and world-renowned artists, as well as live entertainment and kid-friendly food. The program will be geared toward children 12 and under, and those who are 13 and up will serve as art ambassadors to help the artists and younger attendees.

All proceeds will support the Nasher Sculpture Center's youth education programs, such as the 3:01 Club after-school program, the Summer Institute for Teens and free student tours. Educational programs account for more than 33 percent of the center's attendance each year and enable many students and families to experience the Nasher at no cost.

Underwriting levels begin at $500 for a family of four. Individual tickets will go on sale for $75 each if space permits.

For more information about underwriting, call Ashley Fourcand at 214-242-5169 or email afourcand@nasher-sculpturecenter.org.